An interesting sign of the times

This week Michael Nazir-Ali, the former Anglican bishop of Rochester, announced that he had been received into full communion with the Catholic Church. This follows three other Anglican bishops: Jonathan Goodall and John Goddard this year, and Gavin Ashenden, chaplain to the Queen, in 2019.

Michael Nazir Ali, an expert on Islam, is described by former Archbishop of Canterbury Rowan Williams as having “enormous theological skill” and has spoken out bravely for the defence of Christianity. He comes from the evangelical rather than the high-church wing of the Church of England. Dr Ashenden says that in Nazir-Ali's judgement, “Anglicanism has succumbed to the forces of progressive secularism and only the Catholic Church can be counted on to defend the faith against this new secularism that has such ambitious totalitarian instincts.”

St Joseph quote of the week

‘Joseph is an all-powerful intercessor. We must, then, be devoted to him; we must honour him and consecrate ourselves to him. In that way we shall greatly please Jesus and Mary, who consider as done for themselves what is done for Joseph.’ St Peter Julian Eymard
