Reading the Book of Nature

This year BBC Springwatch is based in Arne and Poole harbour and showcases the extraordinary natural diversity of our area. The images of Osprey eggs hatching and shots of White-tailed eagles, not-to-mention of all six species of reptile, Early-Spider orchids and the stunning scenery have a power to stop all of us in our tracks and make us reflect.

This weekend is Trinity Sunday. St Bonaventure reminds us that if it wasn't for human sin, we would all automatically read the natural world like a book - a book that leads us to worship the awesome Trinity who designed it. How silly we are to assume that Natural Selection has somehow replaced God. Far-from-it: it's just that we now know the process of Creation is a much, much bigger picture; an ancient, complex, interconnecting and breath-taking sign of our amazing and beautiful God.
