Returning to normal at Mass

Following the directives we will now start rolling back the restrictions. Please note that it is not our job to police those restrictions that are still recommended.

- Our benches are no longer cordoned off. If you'd prefer a socially-distanced seat for now, we recommend a weekday mass as the Sunday obligation is not being resumed until the autumn.
- There's no longer a mandatory one-way system.
- The churches can now once more be left open unsupervised during the day for private prayer.
- Furniture will no longer be sanitised after each and every mass; instead there will be a good weekly clean.
- Whilst singing is now permitted, we aim to start by just singing some of the parts of the mass together on Sundays. We plan to keep our choirs to sing during Holy Communion - and not go back yet to all singing hymns together until a few weeks' time - as recommended.
- Since ventilation is important we will continue to keep windows open during mass.
- It is recommended that for now we continue to sanitise our hands and to wear a mask.
- There will be no holy water in the stoups yet – if you would like some holy water please ask in the sacristy.
- Sunday collections can resume.
- There will be no sign of peace yet and Holy Communion will still be under one kind.
